

Don't miss the
TI:ME
2003 National Conference

In conjunction with the
CMEA Professional Development Conference
March 12 - 15, 2003
Pasadena Convention Center

TI:ME, the Technology Institute for Music Educators, is pleased to announce our annual national conference. TI:ME is presenting an intensive, pre-conference music technology session on Wednesday, March 12, 2003. This is followed by continuous sessions and exhibits throughout the CMEA State Conference from March 13 - 15, 2003. Take advantage of this year's most comprehensive presentation of music technology resources, workshops and presentations.

Attend the 2003 TI:ME National Conference for:

- ✓ More than 80 technology and music education sessions, including a keynote by Dave Smith – a founding father of MIDI and a pioneer in the evolution of music technology. Plus, presentations by Dr. Thomas Rudolph, author of “Teaching Music with Technology,” and a special concert by Berklee’s David Mash and Friends.
- ✓ A complete 20-station hands-on MIDI lab with computers and the latest software.
- ✓ Industry sessions from Sibelius, eMagic, Alfred Publishing, Fender, MakeMusic, Roland, Shure, SoundTree, Yamaha and more.
- ✓ College credits (1 or 2) are available at $60 per credit from San Jose State University (requires participation in Wednesday TI:ME technology sessions and CMEA conference days). For information call 408-924-4673
- ✓ An unprecedented line-up of music technology resources – it could be years before a comparable experience occurs on the West Coast again.

Keynote Speaker
Dave Smith
