PRESENTED BY

GuitarPlayer BASS PLAYER keyboard EQ

TI:ME

In conjunction with the TI:ME 2005
National Music Technology Conference

Learn with the best music education clinicians

Up to 16 professional development contact-hours available!*

Music Player Network, publishers of Guitar Player, Bass Player, Keyboard, and EQ, in a partnership with TI:ME [Technology Institute for Music Educators], is hosting Music Player Live! at the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Midtown Manhattan.

TI:ME's yearly conference will be held at Music Player Live!, October 21-23, 2005, where instructors and music educators will use the synergy of music education and music technology to come together in a rich environment of technological innovation. Expert clinicians will provide a wealth of information for beginnner, intermediate, and advanced users of various technologies.

If you're a music teacher, register Now, and for $75 you will receive:

- Course materials that are developed by an advisory board of experts from the fields of music education, music technology, and the music industry.
- Music instruction from major clinicians, including: Dr. Thomas Rudolph, TI:ME president, Dr. David Sebald, University of Texas at San Antonio, Dr. James Frankel, Columbia University Teachers College
- Access to exhibits from industry leaders and keynote speakers who specialize in education and pro audio.
- A chance to meet the legendary Les Paul during his Keynote speech on Saturday, October 22.

For more information or to buy tickets, please go to www.musicplayerlive.com and don't forget to include your TI:ME promotional code, MPLTIME2005.

* Up to 16 professional development contact-hours based on state requirements. For more information contact corinnee@soundtree.com.